THANKSGIVING DAY.

That is What Hallowe'en Means to the Hallowe'en originally was set apart as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, to pay devotions to the Most High. What Thanksgiving day" is to the Americans, so is Hallowe'en to the Scotch. It is a time of "a feast dedicated to all the saints in general." Devotional exercises are held to this day in many of the kirks in Scotland.

kirks in Scotland.

It would require quite a lengthy article to describe the many innocent and amusing games, etc. One of the customary games on Hallowe'en nicht is the preparing immediately before the amusement commences, of a very large or small pot of potatoes, according to the number of guests anticipated to be present.

The tauties are a' weel champed (mashed) and quite a number of things put intuil (into it) among which is a ring, very small doll, thimble, three penny piece (six cents), etc. Eatables galore are provided. Lights are put out, and the big chief, a big bonnie (pretty) lassie goes from one to another with a very blackened hand, made so with soot, and feeling hand, made so the sold sold sold the faces of each one she asks "Wha be here." Then she gives a spoonful of the potatoes, and at the same time leaves the black impression of her hand on the face of each one. If all are strangers to this amusement, the laughter is the greater when the lights are turned on, each one laughing loudly at the dirty face of his neighbors.

Concerts "dancing wi' high glee" and other amusements are freely indulged

The bairns (children) bave also their special amusements. Lanterns made from neeps (turnips) with all manner of figures, are cut on the outside shell of the turnips. When it is understood that the turnips generally are as large agree as ordinary squash any one care a size as ordinary squash, any one can readily see how the children have such fun with their turnip lanterns, lighted

At this season the youngsters also go from house to house playing gallautions (lillipution theatrical pieces) and are paid a half penny or a penny for their work. The youngsters are very oddly dressed, and always carry their wooden swords.

The demolization of property never enter into their minds. Severe penalty is inflicted on any person, even trespassing, and destroying property.

There would never be any fear or terror in the hearts of any widowed lady or any other person in Salt Lake City, or in Utah, if the destroyers of property were severely dealt with, or were required, at least, to pay for the damages done by the hoodlums.

JUNIORS' OPEN AIR RECEPTION

Occurred at Commercial Club Given at the State University Last Night to the Freshmen.

HAD BIG CAMPFIRE BAKES.

Students Played "Run Sheep Run" in Dry Canyon and Two of Them Were Lost.

The state university juniors gave an open air reception last night to the freshmen on the foothills below the big "U", and potatoes, onions, etc., were baked in big campfires to regale the interior man. While the toothsome repast" was in preparation, the students past" was in preparation, the students played "Run Sheep Run" in and out of Dry canyon, and two students, Harry Alley and A. Anderson, unfamiliar with the topography, got lost. They were shortly missed, but could not be found, so their fellow students built a big bonfire on a neighboring eminence, and by its glare the lost sheep managed to find the way out of the dark and the tangled underbrush.

The students then came down in a First street car, with pots of red paint.

The students then came down in a First street car, with pots of red paint. In the classical discussions which were held in the car, the windows suffered severely. These were paid for, and the students spread themselves up and down Main street painting on the sidewalks very informal invitations to attend Saturday's game, at Curwing's walks very informal invitations to attend Saturday's game at Cumming's field. This reminded eastern college men who saw the performance, of the pranks of the "Med. Facs" at Harvard, who daubed up the handsome pavement near Sanders Theater, with "To h—I with Yale!" and painted the feet of the stone statue of John Harvard a bright and glowing red. One of the juniors, James Smith, was arrested by the police, but was released on his own recognizance to appear before the nizance to appear before the police court today. Finally the roysterers got tired and "dispersed to their rooms."

TAKE IN YOUR GATES.

This is Hallowe'en Night-Youthful Pranks Are in Order.

This is Hallowe'en night, and the gilded youth about town have made preparation for an extended lark in celebration of the event. Citizens are taking in their gates and locking up in the barns their moveable hen coops and ash barrels, rakes, lawn mowers, etc. The store windows in town are decorated with grinning pumpkin faces, and other cheerful instents of the day and other cheerful insignia of the day, and judging from the number of parties that will be held this evening, the occasion will be well celebrated here.
